The Leaders Within Stephen R. Mason, Kathryn G. Dies, Larry Morgan, 2019-08 The Leaders Within: Engagement, Leadership Development and Succession Planning presents an integrated model for creating an organizational infrastructure in which leadership development acts as a funnel for succession planning. When they follow this guidance, readers can enhance their organization's learning, leadership and longevity. The authors draw on their real world experience in a large health system to define the three unique roles in creating a successful leadership development and succession planning program: the Visionary who helps the organization and its employees see their future potential; the Architect who oversees the actual implementation of the program and the Board Advocate who secures the governing boards support for the process Readers will recognize which role they personally play and gain a deeper understanding of how their organization can embed leadership development and succession planning in its DNA Policy & Practice ,2005
