

CHAPTER 10: ACCOUNTING FOR GOVERNMENTAL OPERATING ACTIVITIES – TRANSLATING TRANSACTIONS AND FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Accounting Challenge

10.1 Further the United financial reporting model: governmental activities are reported as a long-term perspective as the government will benefit using the economic resources continuously. Just as the current basis of accounting (accrual) is different accounting, this means that both income and non-income events and activities are reported on the statement of net assets. Governmental activities, recognized on the current basis, are reported on the statement of activities. Conversely, the General Fund reports on a budgetary perspective using the current financial resources (accounting basis) and the modified accrual basis of accounting. Therefore, the General Fund reports only current events and activities. Revenues and expenditures and other financing sources and uses, recognized on the modified accrual basis, are reported on the statement of activities, expenditures, and changes in fund balances.

Examples of transactions for events that are recorded only in the General Fund general journal include: budgetary events and non-income transactions. Examples of transactions that are recorded only in the governmental activities general journal include: depreciation expense and general capital assets and accrual of interest on long-term debt (as discussed in Chapter 13). Illustration of goods and services, salaries and wages, and other financial items are examples of transactions that are recorded in both the General Fund general journal and the governmental activities journal.

10.2 The primary difference is that the government-wide statement of net assets focuses on long-term economic resources and consequences using the accrual basis of accounting. However, the General Fund focuses on current financial resources and depicts the modified accrual basis of accounting. For that reason, current events pertaining to: activities are reported on the government-wide statement of net assets, but are reported as expenditures and other financing sources on the General Fund financial statement.

Another difference is that the statement of net assets aggregates all governmental activities: the General Fund, special districts, capital projects, debt service, pensioned funds, and some internal service funds and reports change in net difference, whereas the balance sheet for the governmental funds presents a balance for the General Fund, each major fund, and an column for all other non-major funds. A further difference is that the statement of net assets can be prepared either on the net position (current assets minus liabilities) basis, or position for the modified basis (current assets of the General Fund minus equity liabilities plus fund equity).

10.3 The use of non-indigenous provisions illustrates a portion of the underlying budgetary appropriation where a provision setting amount is allocated for activities to support their existing departmental activities and financial department personnel that a portion of the authorization is no longer available. However for non-indigenous, it is always possible that
