Politics and Politicians in Contemporary US Television Betty Kaklamanidou, Margaret Tally, 2016-10-04 Bringing together well-established scholars of media, political science, sociology, and film to investigate the representation of Washington politics on US television from the mid-2000s to the present, this volume offers stimulating perspectives on the status of representations of contemporary US politics, the role of government and the machinations and intrigue often associated with politicians and governmental institutions. The authors help to locate these representations both in the context of the history of earlier television shows that portrayed the political culture of Washington as well as within the current political culture transpiring both inside and outside of The Beltway. With close attention to issues of gender, race, and class, and offering studies from contemporary quality television including popular programmes such as The West Wing, Veep, House of Cards, The Americans, The Good Wife, and Scandal, the authors examine the ways in which televisual representations reveal changing attitudes towards Washington culture, shedding light on the role of the media in framing the public's changing perception of politics and politicians. Exploring the new era in which television finds itself with new production practices and the possible emergence of a new political genre emerging, Politics and Politicians in Contemporary US Television also considers the humanizing of political characters on television, asking what that representation of politicians as human beings says about the national political culture. A fascinating study that sits at the intersection of politics and television, this book will appeal to scholars of popular culture, sociology, cultural, and media studies.
