century factory city Tamara Hareven and Randolph Langenbach have captured the historic experience of millions of Americans We hear for the first time the eloquent voices sometimes elegiac sometimes bitter yet always powerful of immigrant being turned into Americans as they worked the machines which were themselves transforming this country The book focuses on the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company once the largest textile factory in the world The shells of its awesome mills still extend for two miles along the Merrimack River in Manchester New Hampshire Never before have we known so vividly what it was like to live a life in the closed world of a single gigantic industrial entity from the first moment a child set foot in a mill carrying his father s or mother s lunchpail to the moment he retired or was laid off sixty years later

Amoskeag moves through layer after layer of mill life from the elegant world of Boston based executives to the cramped quarters of the families of messenger boys Boston Brahmins and Scottish weaving girls French Canadian dirt farmers and Irish immigrants bosses and workers create and unforgettable vision of shared experiences and ethnic rivalries of company loyalty and bitter strikes of back breaking work and momentary delights in industrializing America Over seventy photographs ranging from classic shots by Lewis Hine to modern portraits of the interviewees help reconstruct the reality that was Amoskeag
