

Study Guide Test 1: Chapters 1 – 3

- Test Structure

- The test will consist of 25 multiple-choice questions, as well as 3 - 4 short answer questions. The test will function as your answer sheet, so please make sure to put your name on it. You will not need a calculator for this test.
- All questions will cover things we have discussed in class. I suggest reviewing your notes, slides, and the textbook to fill gaps in understanding.
- Short answer questions are not intended to be essays. In addressing a question, you should:
 - 1) make a point (e.g., I think that...).
 - 2) provide some reasoning for your point (e.g., I think this because...), and
 - 3) don't write too much. Length does not necessarily equal quality and more length can be detrimental if you contradict yourself or state something that is objectively incorrect. This is a fine line to walk, as you need to show me that you understand the question and your answer.
- YOU DO NOT NEED TO KNOW SPECIFIC DEFINITIONS! I am not going to ask for verbatim definitions. Memorization, as far
 - I will not, for example, ask, "What is the textbook definition of financial statement auditing?"
 - I may, however, ask, "What, in your words, is the definition of financial statement auditing and what role does it play in society?" Some understanding of a textbook definition is certainly helpful, but by no means necessary to score full points.

- Chapter 1 – Auditing and Assurance Services

- Define information risk and explain how the financial statements auditing process helps reduce this risk.

Information risk is the possibility that a company's important information is inaccurate or incorrect. The financial statement auditing process helps to reduce this risk by having an auditor examine said company's financial statements to make sure that the information in those statements is credible and correctly reported.

Information risk is the probability that the information circulated by a company will be false or misleading. Preparers and issuers of financial information may benefit from providing false, misleading, or overly optimistic information. CEOs reduce this risk by demanding timely, relevant, and reliable information through complexity, remoteness, time sensitivity, and consequences.

- Define and contrast financial statement auditing, attestation, and assurance services.
 - Understand the relationship between financial statement auditing, attestation, and assurance.
 - Understand how they are different (i.e., contrast) with respect to provided services.

Financial statement auditing is when a single auditor examines a company's financial statements to make sure the information is accurate and correct to provide the company with credibility. Attestation is taking this information from the financial statements and
